

Zoo and the Animals

On another typical day, the two built a time machine. They tested it and exited but left it on. At night, as they slept in a hut at the zoo, they released their little security monkey—Flake, who lived there too. Playing and talking, they didn't notice that Flake had run away! They looked for the monkey everywhere until they found the time machine turned on. They decided to enter.

They were lucky, as Flake left the settings for the time that would have gone on the computer. They clicked on the button, and the portal was opened.

The portal was opened. The place where he was was the zoo where they were, but it was from the future: everything electronic, the famous flying cars and 800-story buildings. The only problem was: where was Flake?

However, they remembered having a leash with a locator chip on the animal's collar. It had signals everywhere, so Kevin said:

- I knew how to locate it.

But the locator was having some problems with the internet of the future, so they weren't sure if they would find the monkey with it.

The first place they went to was the lion's cave. They didn't go in, as the locator had already recalculated the route, but he got scared just looking at the beasts.

The second place was the giraffe cage. They climbed onto their long necks and then onto their heads, and from above, They saw the last cages.

The third corner was the monkey cage. They thought it was the best corner Flake could be in, but no matter how hard they looked for him, they couldn't find him there.

The fourth place was the butterfly center. They remembered that Flake loved butterflies so that they could be there. As they entered, Flake was playing with the butterflies. They took him and went back to the portal before it closed.

They arrived at the zoo again and saw that nothing had changed. They closed the portal, put the monkey in his cage again, and went to sleep thinking about destroying the machine so that no one made trouble.

We thank...

... The writing group who did this wonderful work with the script.

... The drawing group, although not all drawings made it into the final project we thank you for the effort.

... The editing group, who did an excellent job on the biography.

... The podcast group, who had the work of writing a script, translating, reading in English, and practicing their accent.

... Our teacher, Jairo César, who reminded us weekly about our work, and also teachers Alana Oliveira and João Pedro. They supported us with advice and helped us with translations and ideas.

Short biography

We are the 702 from Christus School – Barão de Studart. We have been studying together since the beginning of the current year, 2023. We are pleased to be working together, and it has been challenging. Students in our class have very diverse skills, which was essential in producing this material. We are very thankful for everyone's work.

See ya!

Zoo and the Animals

Jean and Kevin, two best friends, built a time machine in a zoo. They accidentally left it on while they slept, and their pet monkey, Flake, ran away. Using a locator chip on Flake's collar, they attempted to find him despite internet connectivity issues.

They searched various places in the zoo, including the lion's cave, giraffe cage, and monkey cage, but couldn't locate him. Finally, they found Flake in the butterfly center, playing with butterflies. They took him back to the present through the time machine and decided to destroy it to avoid any further trouble.

In a zoo, two best friends observe: Jean, a guy who loves to build projects, and Kevin, who likes to carry out a friend's tasks.
