7th Grade - A 2024

Christus Barão de Studart

Puggy, a sweet little pig, loves ballet and is always friendly.

Mike, a playful monkey, is great at soccer
and always makes others laugh.

Lila, a cheerful tiger, is learning
ballet and is not shy.

Jerry, a caring mouse, is also talented at soccer.

Zoe, a determined zebra, is very focused on her goals.

The friends all love sports. During lunch, Mike talked about his soccer practice. Zoe said ballet is hard too. Mike teased, saying ballet is easy, but Zoe disagreed.

To keep the peace, Puggy suggested "Why don't the boys try ballet, and the girls try soccer?".
Everyone agreed.

The next day, the boys tried ballet. Mrs. Molly, the ballet teacher, taught them simple steps.

Jerry and Mike found it hard. They admitted ballet was not easy, and the girls laughed.

Then it was the girls' turn to try soccer. The girls felt nervous but remembered how the boys had fun in ballet.

They tried their best and even scored goals, surprising everyone.

After, Mike and Zoe apologized to each other.
They learned a lesson: we should not judge
something, until we try it.

CLASS BIOGRAPHY

We, the 7th Grade A - Class of 2024, are excited and proud to present this book to you, our readers. Completing this project was no easy task; with a class of 35 students, each bringing unique perspectives and ideas, it was challenging to find common ground. However, through teamwork, patience, and dedication, we came together, overcame obstacles.

Creating this book allowed us to learn, grow, and develop new skills while building something meaningful. It reflects the creativity, commitment, and collaboration of our entire class, and we poured our best efforts into every page. We hope that the joy we felt in creating this project comes through to you as you read. Thank you for being part of this journey with us, and may our work bring you as much enjoyment as it did to us!
